IT WAS AN EXCITING DAY FOR ARIEL.
Whales were going to swim nearby,
and she was on her way to see them!

When Ariel passed her friend
Flounder, he swam along beside her.

"Where are you going?" he asked.

Ariel knew that if she told Flounder she was going to see the whales, he wouldn't come.
Flounder was a little jumpy.

"I'm just going for a swim," she said.

Around the corner, Ariel and Flounder swam into Sebastian.
He and his band were setting up.

"You're just in time
for a deep~sea
duet!" he told them.

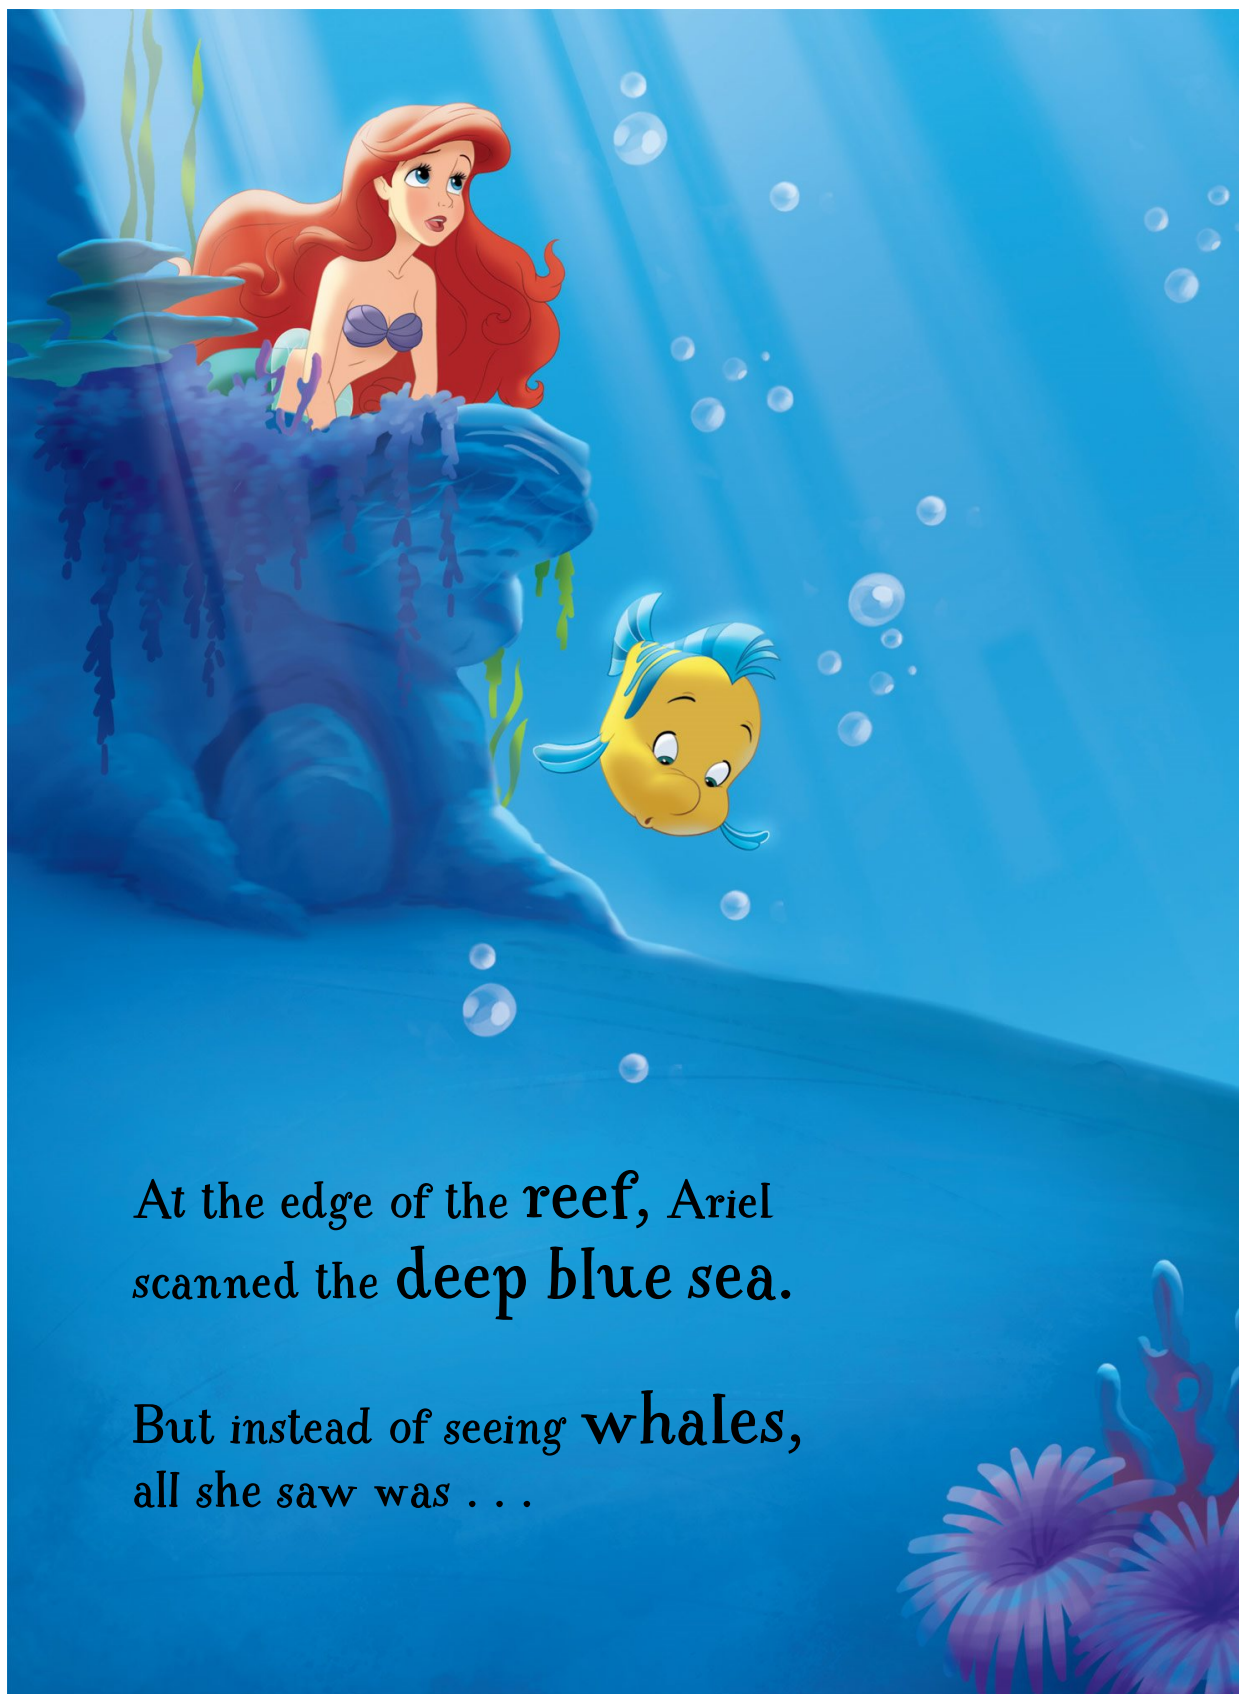

Ariel loved to sing,
but she didn't want to miss the whales. And so, she winked at Flounder . . .

. . . and the two slipped behind a rock.

When the coast was clear,
they dashed away.

At the edge of the reef, Ariel scanned the deep blue sea.

But instead of seeing whales, all she saw was . . .

. . . the deep blue sea.

Slowly, Ariel rose to the surface,
with Flounder not far behind.

“Where are the whales?”
Ariel wondered. “They were supposed to be here by now.”

“Whales?” cried Flounder.

“But they’re so . . .”

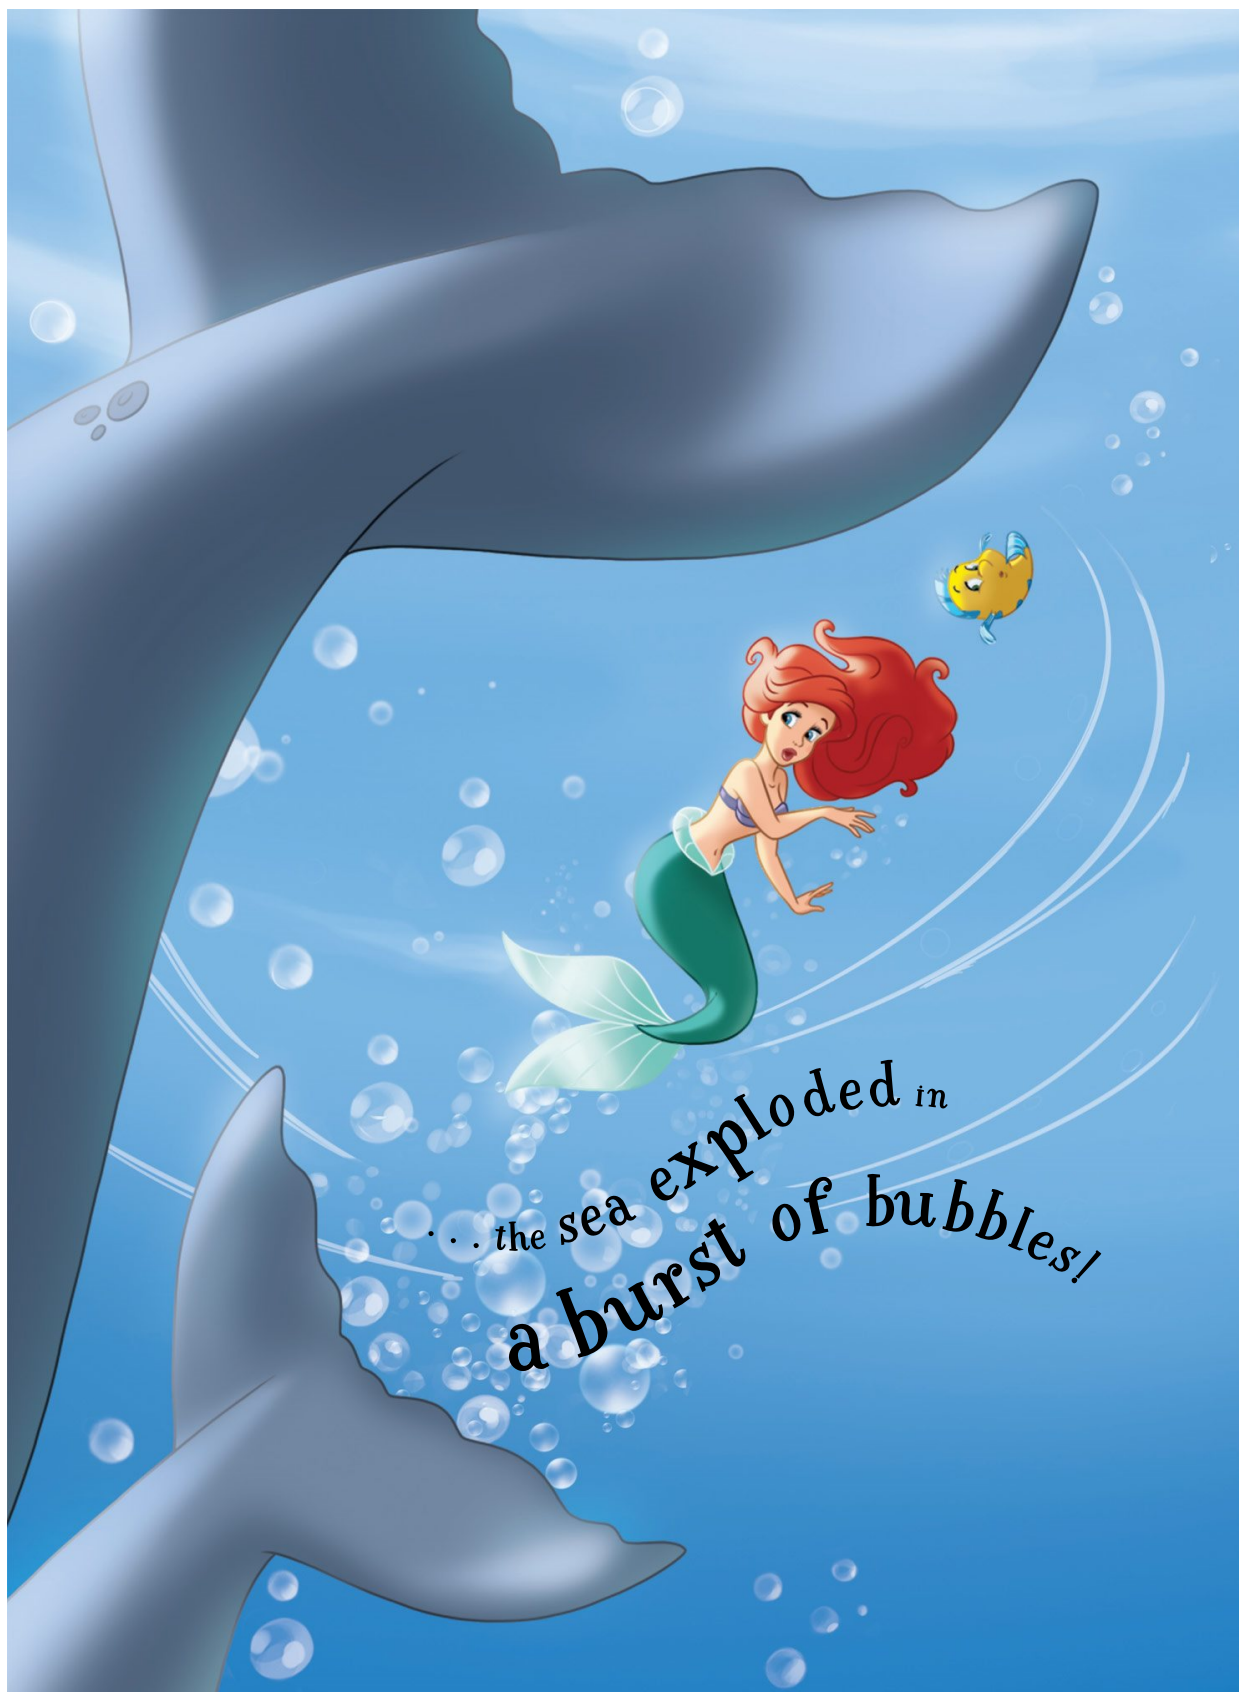

“ . . . enormous!”

“Oh, don’t be such a big baby!” said Ariel.

Flounder frowned because his feelings were hurt. He began to swim away. Ariel started to follow after him, but suddenly . . .

It was a mama and baby whale!

*“Oh, Flounder,
I’m sorry I hurt your feelings,” said Ariel.*

Just then, Ariel and Flounder heard the most beautiful whale song.

The whales were saying good~bye...

... with a splash!

Ariel and Flounder decided to head home and arrived just in time for a deep-sea duet.
